Hello my Takasumi-e Friends!

Thanks to Kathy Romero, we had an amazing workshop last month on the Peony. It was much more than that. Kathy shared tips on color mixing, preparing a palate, brushes and much more. I really enjoyed it and we all painted a great flower.

Next up for December is Gaye Lingley. I am sure it will be exciting. We are so fortunate to have such creative artists in our painting community.

Heads up for an important meeting this month along with our wonderful workshop. We need to nominate and elect new officers. Please think carefully and see who you think would be good in the different offices. Come prepared to nominate and/or accept a position. Also, some of you have ideas on what we should do for this year's show, please come prepared to express your opinion.

As we move into the Holiday Season I would like to wish everyone wonderful times, happiness and health!

Respectfully,
Your President,
Alice

NOVEMBER WORKSHOP

Wowie zowie, what a workshop! Kathy did such a terrific job and everyone raved!!!! The video she suggested, while all in Chinese, was a perfect lead-in to her demonstration and success was had by all. Here are a few screenshots taken by Tricia. We can't wait to have her back again in 2022.

DECEMBER WORKSHOP WITH GAYE

Elves, Nisse, Tomte, Trolls – these are all names for folkloric figures in Nordic/Scandinavian tales of Christmas or Winter.

Nisse or Tomte (Tomten) tended to visit farms or barns which they felt needed help and, in turn, expected to be compensated by being provided with breakfast of oatmeal and honey. The Tomten are represented in a rather ragged grey suit with a red pointed hat. There are tales of the farmer's wife, feeling that the Tomte's clothing was tattered and worn, made him a new suit of clothes. This was not a good idea and was often met with hostility.

The Lapps of northern Norway, Sweden and Russia had a 17th and 18th century rite of the Bear Hunt and Feast as the Bear was a much-feared and much-revered creature in that culture. The Lapps, with their nomadic caribou-centric culture, would send their best hunters out to slay and bring back the beast and then the entire village would celebrate in a rather raucous, festive, and all-inclusive manner. I'm attaching a copy of "The Bear Feast" by Ossian Elgstrom (1883-1950) which is a pen & ink piece and which, I think, lends itself to sumi-e interpretation. The Lapps, as imagined by Elgstrom, have a Tomte-feel to them.

I'm providing a couple of links for you, if you're interested, about Nisse and a child's story about Tomten.

"The Nisse": <https://youtu.be/jETPxlyJOF4>

"The Tomten and the Fox": <https://youtu.be/fAsOp-cawXw>

Peer Gynt by Henrik Ibsen is a Norwegian tale which includes Trolls. Some of us may know this story and its subsequent music, the Peer Gynt Suite by Edvard Grieg. Gaye's oldest daughter's favorite story as a child was the "Three Billy Goats Gruff", which included a Troll who lived under a bridge.

There are many pictures of trolls, nisse, elves and tomte online today. Included are a few for your reference. We'll translate these images into a Japanese style using sumi and our papers and colors.
